

The University of Rhode Island

Assistant Research Professor, Nursing

The position is part-time (.60), calendar year appointment for 2016. The successful candidate will join an innovative federal grant with partnering health centers in Rhode Island to improve nurse practitioner primary care training. The position is renewable for 2 years, contingent upon funding renewal. Clinical teaching of family and adult-gerontological nurse practitioner graduate students in various clinical sites in Rhode Island Health Professional Shortage Areas. The clinical faculty, located at Thundermist Health Center and Providence Community Health Centers, will be responsible for delivering direct patient care to patients in their roles as primary health care providers/educators. Serve as preceptor of nurse practitioner students, in accordance with the agency terms and policies. Develop and implement educational programs and on-line learning modules to be used in the clinical education of graduate nurse practitioner students from the MS and DNP programs at the College of Nursing, in conjunction and collaboration with College of Nursing faculty.

Visit the URI jobs website at: <https://jobs.uri.edu> to apply and view complete details for job posting (SF00336). APPLICATION DEADLINE: Search will remain open until the position is filled. First consideration will be given to applications received by October 15, 2016. Secondary consideration may be given to applications received by November 1, 2016. Applications received subsequent to the second consideration date (November 1, 2016) may not be given full consideration. Please attach 3 (PDF) documents to your electronic application: (#1) cover letter, (#2) CV which includes the names and contact information for 3 references, and (#3)“Other Document” which is a copy of your NP license.

APPLICATIONS MUST BE SUBMITTED ONLINE ONLY.

The University of Rhode Island is an AA/EEOD employer. Women, persons of color, protected veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of other protected groups are encouraged to apply.